Too Much Or Too Little

Basin's Critical Water Problem

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the first of two articles on the Delaware River Basin.)

By Don Allen

TWO important steps in the development of the Delaware River Basin and Service Area will be taken this year.

Delaware River Basin

Advisory Committee hopes to have a draft of an interstate federal compact forming a Delaware River Commission ready for public perusal and discussion by next month and a final draft ready for legislative action by Fall of this year. And a U. S. Army Corps of Engineers report on the basin is expected to be completed in May. It will be considered tentative until it is submitted to Congress after lengthy reviews, expected to take at least six months.

By 1961, it is hoped, Congress may be asked to approve funds for several dams to aid in controlling the waters of the river. What does this mean to the average resident of the vast area covered by the basin and service area? It may well mean life itself.

Current use—or misuse—of the available water supply and the prospect of greatly increased demands in the future are the principal concerns of the Water Resources Assn. of the Delaware River Basin.

This organization, headed by Charles R. Bensinger, Stroudsburg attorney, as president, has published a booklet, "Too Much or Too Little," tracing the history of the Delaware and what can be expected in the future.

Some of its statistics are downright frightening for those who remember the floods and droughts which have plagued the area in the past.

The office of business economics of the U. S. Dept. of Commerce estimates that the Delaware River Service Area will have a population of 42,000,000 by the year 2010. And the water resources association estimates that within the same period, domestic and commercial use of water will be four times greater than it was in 1955.

The association feels that the natural water resources of the Delaware River Basin can keep up with these mounting demands. In its own words, here is how it summarizes the situation:

"Annual rainfall has not diminished. The rivers and streams and natural underground reservoirs are still there.

More Water Used

"The problem is not that there is less water than before, but that more people are using more water in more ways than ever—and that the people who depend on the Delaware River Basin for their water supplies have not created an adequate 'water bank'—to control the water that is here so that there will be a balance between too much and too little."

Achieving this balance and protection of the water resources of the area—now and in the future—are the goals of the water resources association and affiliated agencies.

One of these is the Water Research Foundation for the Delaware River Basin, established in 1956 as a privately financed, non-profit corporation designed to meet the continuing need for fact-finding and original research in legal, governmental and land-use problems that affect the basin.

The foundation obtained a $131,000 grant from the Ford Foundation to finance a study by the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Administration at Syracuse University.

The so-called Syracuse report, a 500-page document, was completed on schedule and delivered to the foundation on Sept. 1 of last year.

It is from this study that the decision to form an interstate-federal agency for control of the basin came.

The difference between the Delaware River Basin and the river's service area is important to any discussion of the river and its resources.

The basin consists of a watershed covering an area of 12,757 square miles in the states of Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Delaware.

The service area includes the basin and adjacent territory which depends now, or may depend in the future upon the Delaware River, its tributaries and underground water supplies for all or part of its water needs.

In this service area, comprising only one percent of the total land area of the country, is concentrated 20,000,000 people, representing 13 percent of the nation's population.

The goal of the agencies concerned with the Delaware is to provide sufficient water, in the face of increasing demand, for personal needs, industry, agriculture, recreation and navigation and to prevent pollution.

Asked To Join In Vote Probe

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pennsylvania's attorney general, Anne X. Alpern, was asked Thursday to join the request for a grand jury investigation of alleged voting and registration frauds in Philadelphia.

Miss Alpern replied that she will hear both sides of the story before she acts.

The Committee of 70, a civic organization, made the request while Miss Alpern was hearing complaints at the State Office Building against the way Dist. Atty. Victor H. Blane has handled the case.

Ike Accepts Resignation Of Doerfer

WASHINGTON (AP) — John C. Doerfer resigned Thursday as chairman of the Federal Communications Commission. He said he did so to spare President Eisenhower "possible embarrassment."

Eisenhower accepted the resignation with a letter which thanked Doerfer for tireless, loyal and effective service.

But the President also said he believed Doerfer's decision to quit the FCC was "a wise one."

Ford Chosen

The resignation is effective next Monday. Eisenhower designated a member of the commission, Frederick W. Ford of Clarksburg, W. Va., to become chairman on the following day.

Doerfer has been under fire in Congress for accepting hospitality from a radio-TV executive.

Doerfer told House investigators last week that he had been a guest last month on the yacht of George B. Storer, who holds FCC licenses for five television and a dozen radio stations.

Doerfer's resignation was announced at the White House.

James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary, said Doerfer talked with Eisenhower 20 to 30 minutes Wednesday during an unpublished visit to the White House.

In response to questions, Hagerty said the transcript of Doerfer's testimony to the House Legislative Oversight Committee had been examined by White House staff officials and "the President was aware of it" before Doerfer paid his call.

326 Rescued From School For Blind

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A flaming roof fell on a company of firemen in the main building of the Overbrook School for Blind Thursday, killing a fire lieutenant and injuring five other firemen.

All of the 326 students and employees were evacuated safely.

One of the critically injured firemen, Albert McMahon, was rescued alive after being trapped for more than an hour under the rubble.

The fire broke out in the employees' dormitory shortly before dinner. Its cause was not determined. The fire marshal's office said it is checking a report the fire began in a mattress.

Unemployment Dips Slightly

HARRISBURG (AP) — Unemployment declined slightly in Pennsylvania between mid-January and mid-February.

The Bureau of Employment Security said Thursday the total idle at the end of the period was 362,000, or 7.99 percent of the civilian labor force.

Heavy Odds Face Mine Rescue Crew

LOGAN, W. Va. (AP) — Weary rescue workers, hampered and hexed by seemingly every sort of handicap, kept working doggedly Thursday toward the spot where 18 fellow coal miners have been trapped behind a mine fire for nearly three days.

The rescue crew was working four miles under a snow-covered mountain, battling gas pockets, rock slides and increasing heat generated by the fire that so far has refused all efforts to extinguish it.

State Mines Director Crawford L. Wilson told newsmen rescue operations were in the best shape yet.

BULLETIN

LOGAN, W. Va. (AP) — State Mines Director Crawford L. Wilson said early Friday the advance rescue party had broken into an entry leading to the area where he believes 18 stranded coal miners are and could possibly reach them within an hour. "But the time is running out," he added.

A series of slate falls at the Island Creek Coal Co. mine 12 miles from here.

Paul Lingo, deputy director of the State Mines Department, said about 40 rescuers were in the mine.

Lingo said without a doubt the stubborn fire, which has plagued rescue efforts from the outset, remained by far the biggest obstacle.

He said the 40 men who were in the mine were concentrating on four projects—three of them involving fighting the fire from three sides with 12 water lines.

Diverted Fumes

Another group of about eight men moved slowly down the tunnel beyond the fire area, using canvas walls for protection and to channel deadly monoxide fumes and smoke from the fire out of the mine.

It was estimated they still were at least 2,500 feet from the point where the men are believed trapped.

Finch Jury Weighs Case Sixth Day

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "We have reached no verdict."

With this word to a bailiff, jurors weighing the guilt or innocence of Dr. R. Bernard Finch and Carole Tregoff ended their sixth day of deliberations Thursday.

They will try again early Friday. They now have officially deliberated for 28 hours—and there is still no sign they are nearing a verdict.

The stress of the long wait showed on the defendants. Carole burst into tears as they left the courthouse at noon for lunch at the county jail. The doctor patted her head with his mottled hands as his station wagon pulled away.

The wealthy surgeon and his pretty mistress are accused of murdering his wife. Both face a possible death sentence.

Cloture Move Defeated By Wide Margin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate refused Thursday to put a time limit on its marathon civil rights debate.

It then went on to defeat one amendment, opposed by the Southerners, giving the attorney general broad injunctive powers in civil rights cases.

Later the Senate adopted one amendment favored by the Southerners.

Not Yet In Control

The overall result of the roll-call votes was to show that all-out Senate advocates of civil rights legislation are not in position to get their way in the bitter election-year battle.

By a vote of 53-42, the Senate first rejected a move to invoke the Senate's debate - limiting cloture rule and thus crush a filibuster by Southern foes of civil rights legislation.

A two-thirds majority was required to put the rule into effect. But backers of the move fell 22 votes short of that, falling even to muster a majority.

Then Thursday night, by a 55-38 vote, the Senate tabled and thus killed an amendment to empower the attorney general to bring school desegregation and other civil rights suits in behalf of individual citizens.

Penalties Lowered

It quickly followed this with an 89-0 vote reducing the penalties provided in the administration's civil rights bill for obstructing by force or threats court orders in school desegregation cases.

The amendment, offered by Sen. Sam J. Ervin (D-NC), cut penalties from a $10,000 fine or two years in jail to a $1,000 fine or one year in jail.

This brought the penalties more nearly in line with those provided for in a civil rights bill on which the House started debate Thursday.

Sen. Frank J. Lausche (D-Ohio) offered an amendment to make this section of the bill apply to obstruction of all court orders, not just those in school desegregation cases.

Recess Until Today

Lausche's amendment became the pending business as the Senate recessed at 9:49 p.m., until 11 a.m. Friday. Majority leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) said he did not plan a night session Friday or a Saturday session.

Adoption of Lausche's amendment would be even more pleasing to the Southern senators than the reduction in penalties provided by Ervin's amendment.

Both the Senate party leaders, Johnson and Republican Everett Dirksen of Illinois, opposed cloture.

The 42 votes in favor of curbing debate numbered only 11 more than the 31 who signed the petition forcing a vote on cloture at this time.

This petition was filed Tuesday under the leadership of Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.) and Sen. Jacob K. Javits (D-N.Y.).

May Resume Filibuster

Rejection of the petition left Southern senators free to resume a filibuster against civil rights action, if they chose. However, it appeared the Southerners would not try to block all action—certainly not on proposals they figured would not pass anyway.

The Senate galleries were packed for the cloture vote, in contrast with the thin attendance that has marked much of the civil rights debate since Feb. 15.

Walter Presides As House Takes Up Civil Rights

WASHINGTON — Congressman Francis E. Walter (D-Easton) was cast in a familiar role Thursday during House consideration of its own civil rights bill.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Texas) stepped down from the rostrum when the lower chamber took up the measure. As he frequently has done in the past, Rayburn appointed Rep. Walter to preside during the debate on the controversial bill, on which a vote is expected late next week.

After voting 312-93 Thursday to consider the civil rights issue, the House members adjourned to the rear of the Senate chamber to watch that body vote on a cloture motion intended to limit Senate debate on civil rights. The motion lost, 68-43.

Daily Lenten Meditation

Romans 12:1-8

I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. (Romans 12:1.)

Once a soldier said to Lillian Eubank in a U.S.O. club: "I have watched you for a month; and it does not matter how confusing a situation you are in, how disagreeable the people you are with, you always have a smile and a cherry word. What kind of vitamins do you take?"

She answered, "It isn't a vitamin—it's a philosophy of life. You smile when you believe everything works together for good—if you let it."

This "if" depends on one thing — the discipline of self-denial. Freedom in a Christian sense is not freedom to do what one pleases or to get what one wants. Freedom is deliverance from the bondage of self and sin. A paradox of the Christian faith is that we are never really free until we become slaves to Christ, until our lives become living sacrifices, holy and acceptable unto God.

PRAYER: O God, help us to use our powers and our gifts for Thy purposes. Help us to yield our loves and our lives to Thy great boundless love. Help us to see our waywardness and misunderstandings in the light of Thy truth and wisdom. Through Christ our Lord Amen.

Thought for the Day

The Christian life is a disciplined life.

Eight Taken From Earthquake Ruins

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — Eight weak and dazed survivors, including four children, were pulled Thursday from the rubble of Agadir.

Their recovery 10 days after the earthquakes that destroyed the Atlantic resort city spurred renewed rescue efforts now under way with air hammers, shovels and bare hands.

Schoolboys Paddled For Failing Quiz

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP)—Spare the rod and spoil the child? Not Bohden Pashowsky, a teacher at Langley High School. He paddled 39 boys.

Why?

Said Pashowsky in his defense Thursday.

"Some of them didn't know Pittsburgh is the steel capital of the world."

Pashowsky said he had spent four or five days on material about the Middle Atlantic states.

"I told them we would have a quiz on this material on Tuesday," he said. "I warned if they didn't know the answers, they would get paddled or detained."

Some Excused

"I excused from paddling those with extremely low I.Q.'s and the physically weak—the anemic looking ones."

"The girls asked me: Are we going to get paddled?"

"Women have equal rights. They drew their own inference from it."

Some girls told their parents, and they complained to Principal Harry Book. Pashowsky was suspended.

Book, in ordering the suspension, said the paddling was in violation of board rules.

Pashowsky was a laborer in a German concentration camp during World War II and in the Korean conflict was a member of the U.S. Army intelligence division.

Snow Traps Hundreds In Carolina

A NEW storm lashed the Midwest with snow, sleet and freezing rain Thursday while in the snow-battered East rescue units mobilized to aid hundreds of families trapped in the mountainous counties in northwestern North Carolina. Snow accumulations in the area were to three feet, with some drifts measuring up to 15 feet.

Gov. Luther Hodges ordered the National Guard to open its armories in the stricken area and stand by to deliver emergency supplies of food, fuel and medicine.

The Guard and Army at Ft. Bragg rushed a five-ton tractor and other heavy equipment to the four-county area. Three helicopters were scheduled to fly emergency missions to snowed-in homes Friday.

The children were identified as Alice Kalton, 16; Jacqueline Kalton, 15; Armand Kalton 6, and Cadiz Gonzales, 13. All are Jewish. About half of Agadir's 2,400 Jews are believed to have died in the disaster.

Estimates of the death toll from the earthquakes and resultant tidal wave and fires run as high as 12,000. Few additional survivors if any at all, are expected to be found. But in refugee camps at Inezgane, four miles from Agadir, thousands are still waiting anxiously for news of relatives.

There was still a slight hope of survivors at the hotel Saada where faint calls for help were heard from under the wreckage Tuesday.

The tremor hit the city just before midnight. Some of the 60 foreign guests in the hotel may have been in the basement night club. Since it was located in the center of the four-story building, the night club may not have been as safe. Large stocks of drinks and some food for any survivors to live on were available at the basement bar, an employee said.

Control of Basin

The so-called Syracuse report, a 500-page document, was completed on schedule and delivered to the foundation on Sept. 1 of last year.

It is from this study that the decision to form an interstate-federal agency for control of the basin came.

The difference between the Delaware River Basin and the river's service area is important to any discussion of the river and its resources.

Auto-Determination Coined By DeGaulle For Algeria

(True in a series of articles on France by David Ottaway, a former reporter for The Daily Record.)

Paris, France — "Auto-determination" is the catch-word President de Gaulle coined last Sept. 16 in regard to the Algerian situation.

Algerians will choose their future free with France in complete freedom of means of the ballot. As de Gaulle has repeated numerous times this is the most French way to resolve the problem.

The term "auto-determination" is certainly a carefully chosen word having all the allusions to "the most worthy democratic principles. Yet the had will always mix with the good.

It is beyond a shadow of a doubt that there will be elections in Algeria as de Gaulle has promised. His position, popularity and the Fifth Republic depend upon it. As to when they will be held, no one is very clear.

De Gaulle's first stipulation is that all fighting cease. Since he has refused to negotiate with rebel leaders concerning a cease-fire, it seems that the date of negotiations depends upon that of the rebel's defeat.

Reveals Understanding
The following quote reveals de Gaulle's understanding of the outcome of future Algerian elections. It is from a speech he made at Limoux while on a recent tour in Southern France. De Gaulle declared "It is the only issue of a lamentable war, the only course which can lead to a solution: Algeria tied naturally to France. I say tied, because it suffices to regard the map in order to understand that it is in the nature of things that Algeria be tied to France."

Thus the extreme importance of the present day war in Algeria. The people must be in a position to vote freely and safely.

But there is another side to the story. De Gaulle's position assumes the minority role of the rebel party F. L. N. It also supposes the good will of the vast majority of Moslems toward France.

Granted that there are important, perhaps decisive, outside influences supporting the rebels and sustaining the war, the truth is that enough Moslems care to see Algeria free that a war continues into its sixth year.

No one to whom I have posed the question "What portion of the population does the F. L. N. represent?" has given me a very clear answer. I conclude that the truth escapes definition and is relative to political propaganda.

I spent three and one-half hours talking with a de Gaulle supporter recently, which added up to three and one-half hours of passionate but instructive conversation, but least of all did I receive what seemed to be a reasonable answer to the following question:

How is it tenable that Algerians will vote for close alliance with France in light of the wide spread movement, in nearly every colonized country of Africa toward independence?

And how is it "in the nature of things" that Algeria be tied to France?

It is interesting to note M. Ferhat Abbas' interpretation of "auto-determination." He is the leader of G. P. R. A., the political party supporting Algerian independence.

"A democratic procedure, auto-determination is, in effect, capable of regulating once and for all the Algerian problem in giving to the people the care of deciding freely and sovereignly their destiny. It will permit her to have access peacefully to her independence."

Thus the term is baited back and forth. Both sides agree to it but demand special conditions before its application. The F. L. N. as well as de Gaulle seek the most favorable conditions for the position each one represents.

Both Certain

Both sides seem certain of the outcome, one answer being diametrically opposed to the other. Ferhat Abbas has the historical movement of decolonization and nationalism on his side.

De Gaulle seems to be waging war with his prestige among the Moslem people as his principal force, and arm. In effect, both sides demand that the opposition be broken before elections are held. Strange prelude to the application of a democratic principle "auto-determination."

Eisenhower Takes Steps To Flow Info To Public

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower Wednesday denied 30 federal agencies the right to classify information as secret. But he gave this privilege to eight other agencies, some of which already had such authority through predecessor agencies.

The White House said the net result was that the President "has taken further action to insure that the free flow of information to the public regarding governmental activities will not be hampered by improper use of security classifications."

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration was one agency specifically granted the right to stamp information secret. The Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization received similar authority. The ODCM is a merger of two previously existing separate agencies, each of which had the right to classify information.

The other six agencies given the power to hang secret tags on information are the Council on Foreign Economic Policy, Development Loan Fund, Federal Aviation Agency, Federal Radiation Council, National Aeronautics and Space Council and the President's board of consultants on foreign intelligence activities.

The 30 agencies denied power to label information secret included such groups as the Advisory Committee on the Arts, the Civil Rights Commission, and the Theodore Roosevelt Centennial Commission. The complete list was not announced.

MORA Club Discuss Plans For Arbor Day Program

PLANS for the annual Arbor Day program were discussed at a meeting of the MORA Club Wednesday at the YMCA.

The program will be held April 6 at the Ramsey Elementary School, Stroudsburg. Planting of a pink dogwood tree will highlight the program.

Rev. Seeley Speaker

Rev. Francis Seeley was the speaker at the meeting, discussing Christian missions in Thailand. Walter H. Sebring, assistant superintendent of Monroe County schools, led the singing.

Arthur Troegner presented a reading.

At the next meeting, a film, "State Trooper," will be shown.

One Killed, 5 Hurt In Fire

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — One fireman was killed and at least five others injured Thursday in a fire which swept the main building of the Overbrook School for the Blind. All students and employees were reported evacuated safely.

The roof of the block square West Philadelphia institution collapsed, trapping the firemen. Two were reported missing.

Dense smoke made rescue work difficult for the scores of firefighters battling the five-alarm blaze.

About 100 were reported in the building when the fire began. Most of them were resident students. Day students had left some time before the fire was discovered about 5:20 p.m.

Nuns from the nearby Our Lady of Lourdes School assisted in getting students out of the school.

Freedman Offers Aid To Groups

A. HARRY Freedman of Harry's Farm on the banks of the Delaware River has now consented to offer his 35 years in club and church activities to any worthwhile organization in helping to promote social and money raising programs.

Freedman is opening on March 14 a studio in the Penn-Stroud Hotel to teach bridge and conduct bridge tournaments.

He feels that he wants to become a closer part of this community and therefore contribute his knowledge and time to its welfare.

Bridge Master
Freedman is a national bridge master and recently received his degree as a certified bridge instructor from the Master Bridge Teachers Institute.

In addition to conducting public classes he will cater to private card clubs and individuals in their homes or private gatherings.

He feels that as contract and duplicate bridge is now sweeping the country and thousands of players are competing almost daily in most cities throughout the U.S.A. that the Stroudsburg area should not be left behind.

Hold Tournaments
Right now Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown and many other cities in this area are conducting bridge tournaments once or twice a year.

The meeting on Monday, March 14 will be conducted as an open forum, all bridge players and those wanting to learn are welcome. There will be no charge and a social hour will follow with refreshments being served.

Swearing, Lying Seen Top Temptations Of Youths

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

High school youngsters today think that the sin they're most tempted to commit is swearing.

And lying, as they see it, is their second most prevalent pitfall.

This was the finding of a comprehensive study of the attitudes of 113,000 youths, on nearly every aspect of their lives, conducted by Lutheran Youth Research of Minneapolis.

It also showed a wide gap in understanding between parents and their progeny.

Among other conclusions: A majority of the teen-agers put social acceptance and physical well-being ahead of spiritual values.

Senior students attach more importance to religion than do the young juniors and sophomores.

Girls are more devout than boys.

Three-fourths of the youths believe that they are justified before God by trying to "live a good life," rather than by faith, and they are "not certain of God's forgiveness."

As for the most ensnaring sins, after swearing and lying, the youths ranked the following as the ones that bother them most, in order of intensity:

Questionable books and magazines, questionable movies, dirty stories, necking and petting, malicious gossip, cheating, pressure to go along with the crowd, smoking, reckless driving.

Down at the bottom of the list were "sexual relations, drinking liquor, gambling, destruction of property and stealing."

The survey took two years to complete, and cost $32,000.

It was supported by youth boards of the American Lutheran, Evangelical Lutheran, the United Evangelical Lutheran and the Augustana Lutheran churches, the Lutheran Free Church, and the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

The data was gathered through both interviews and questionnaires, covering 450 separate items about 113,000 high school students from 5,000 congregations.

A companion survey of parents showed that they are far off the mark in their concepts of what most concerns their sons and daughters.

For instance, the most worrisome factor of family relations for kids is whether they're nice enough to other members. Parents never suspected it. They thought discipline was the kids' main strain. But it hardly bothers them at all.

The youngsters also are often distressed by thoughts of their parents dying — an anxiety that the parents would never have guessed.

As for personal problems, the kids' chief concern is whether they help others enough, and qualms about their ability. But, according to the survey, they are not bored at home, or obsessed with being popular, as imagined by their parents.

In general, the survey indicated young people are happier about their home life and less critical of their elders than the parents believed.

The kids also are more interested in adult companionship than parents knew. And they are less concerned with dating problems than Mom and Dad thought.

Businessmen Air Problems

EAST Stroudsburg Businessmen's Association discussed three problems at their meeting last night in the Municipal Building.

The situations talked over were Greyhound Bus parking on Crystal St.; Lighting plan and planning and zoning.

They were aired at length with no direct action taken.

A special meeting is planned and the date will be announced later.

Commissioners Review Fire Insurance On County Records

Told Policies Cover Cost Of Replacing

DISCUSSIONS on fire insurance on county records were held yesterday during the meeting of Monroe County Commissioners.

Insurance agent Joseph Small attended the meeting, and he told commissioners he was presently reviewing the insurance held by the county against fire consuming records.

Small said the present insurance policies held by the county only pay for the actual cost of replacing the records.

Chairman John Lesoine said almost all the modern records of the county have been photostated and are being held in vaults in Allentown.

Lesoine said the 25,000 property record cards being held in the Assessor's Office are extremely valuable to the county, and to replace the cards would involve many man-hours plus the cost of the cards which he estimated at about $10,000.

$100,000 Coverage
The present premium on the county fire insurance on records amounts to $702 every three years for a coverage of $100,000.

Further review of the insurance will be held by the commissioners with Small in the future.

In other business, it was announced that attempts are being made to have the question of harness racing put on the voting machines for voters who are registered non-partisan.

CD Directors
The reappointment of Lesoine, C. Marshall Reese and A. Marvin Abel to three-year terms as Civil Defense directors was announced.

Low bidder for the project of printing ballots and other material for the Primary Election April 26 was the Sun Lithoprint Co., East Stroudsburg, with a bid of $2,091.50. Only other bidder was a Pocono Record with a bid of $2,108.

Appointments made by the commissioners yesterday included Francis R. O'Boyle, Mount Pocono, and Marjorie Neyhart, Paradise, as assessors for their respective communities.

Mrs. Shiffer, 77, Mount Pocono, Dies

MRS. ELLA Lasser Shiffer, 77, of 201 Main St., Mount Pocono died at 9 a.m. yesterday in her home.

She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Titus Carver, Buckingham, Pa., and the widow of William J. Shiffer.

Mrs. Shiffer was a member of the Mt. Pocono Methodist Church and of the church W. S. C. S.

She is survived by one son, Edward H. Lasser, Stroudsburg; two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Bussinger, Point Pleasant, N. J. and Mrs. Alice Bennett, Beldvidere, N. J.; one brother, Frank Carver, Buckingham, Pa. and one grandson.

Services Sunday
Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. in her home with Rev. James F. Mort officiating.

Interment will be in the St. Paul's Reformed Cemetery, Swiftwater.

Friends and relatives may call at her home Saturday after 7 p.m.

All arrangements are under the direction of the Dunkelberger and Westbrook Funeral Home.

Gates Says U.S. Has Strength

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. said Thursday the United States now has and will continue to have power sufficient to deter the Soviet Union from even thinking about launching a massive sneak attack.

Gates maintained the current military program is about right to keep this country prepared for all-out or smaller wars. He said he would never hesitate to recommend increases whenever changes in the threat of war or scientific advances warranted a greater effort.

Swiftwater Scout Gets Top Award

EAGLE Scout Robert Webster of Troop 95, Swiftwater, was awarded the Bronze Palm at a Court of Honor held recently in the Swiftwater Methodist Hall.

Webster is the first scout in the Northern Pocono District to receive this award.

Advancement to a Bronze Palm is begun with the first award in scouting - Tenderfoot - and then successively through Second Class, and First Class. Advancement beyond this point in scouting is through the earning of merit badges. The next step is Star Route, which requires five merit badges, then Life which requires a total of 10 merit badges.

21 Badges Required
To be advanced to the rank of Eagle Scout a total of 21 merit badges is required. The Palms awards are next and require five merit badges for each the Bronze, Gold and Silver Palms.

Other awards were made to Star Scout Richard Leies, a merit badge for Swimming and Life Saving, and Robert Webster, a merit badge for Animal Industry.

Two new scouts were welcomed into the troop. They were Alan Gross and James Hoffman.

Following the Court of Honor Robert Beck, assistant scoutmaster, and Thornton Counterman, committee chairman, were presented engraved plaques for their work in scouting. Both men are retiring.

Daniel Miller, executive of the Delaware Valley Area, presented Troop 95 with an Honor Plaque for their achievements during the years.

Movies Shown
Movies were shown of trips taken into Canada by members of Explorer Post 99, Barrett Township.

Preceding the program the ladies of the Pocono-Paradise P.T.A. served a covered dish supper for the seventy-five persons attending the meeting.

Okay Over 65 Medical Plan

HARRISBURG (AP) — A plan to provide medical and surgical insurance coverage for persons over 65 years old was approved Thursday by the Pennsylvania Medical Society.

The plan, subject to the approval of Blue Shield and the State Insurance Commission, would cost an estimated $2.07 monthly. It would be limited to elderly persons whose family income is less than $4,000 annually or whose individual income is less than $2,500 a year.

Under present rules, only persons who have Blue Shield coverage during their working years are allowed to carry their coverage past 65. The cost to them has been $1.20 monthly.

Seniors All For Alumni Group

HACKETTSTOWN, N. J. — A hundred per cent active membership in the Centenary College for Women Alumni Association for the class of 1960 was presented to Miss Margaret Rahfield, alumni secretary when she spoke at the recent senior class meeting.

Her visit was scheduled to outline initial plans for the organization of the class as an alumni group. However, the seniors under the leadership of Vernia Payer, president, and Miss Mary Frye, faculty adviser, anticipated her visit by collecting the dues payments representing 100 per cent of the class.

The announcement was made at a meeting of the company's board of directors.

A petition before the State Public Utility Commission was withdrawn Wednesday. The increase would have raised one zone fares from 18 to 20 cents.

Transit Firm Drops Hike Bid

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — The Scranton Transit Co. has withdrawn its request for a 2-cent fare increase, it was disclosed Thursday.

Stroud Twp. Supervisors Adopt Budget, Up Millage

STROUD TOWNSHIP supervisors have adopted a 1960 budget calling for expenditures of $162,079 and an increase in real estate taxes from 2.6 to four mills.

Of the total, $100,000 is provided for a bond issue which will finance construction of a new municipal building and fire headquarters in the Fifth St. area.

Not Over Two Percent
The bond issue does not require ratification by the electorate since the amount is not over the two percent of the township's assessed valuation provided by law.

The four mills will be divided between three mills for general government and one mill for fire protection. A $5 per capita tax has also been reenacted.

Harold E. Albert, secretary of the board of supervisors, estimated the new municipal building will cost about $75,000.

Resurface Roads
Largest other item in the budget is $40,000 for permanent surfacing of roads. Last year, $27,002 was expended for this purpose.

The township's planning commission has been budgeted at $2,500 and the cost of police protection has been increased from $800 last year to $2,000 this year.

Grundsow Attracts 200

THE FIFTH annual persons-of-the Grundsow Lodge Number 724 of the Stroudsburg attracted 200 area Pennsylvania Dutchmen last night to the American Legion Home. Habtmon Dr. Floyd Shafer served as toastmaster. The main address was given by Dr. Clyde S. Stein, Dean of Men at Millersville State College. Other speakers included Dr. Robert F. Opplinger of Northampton and Charles W. Ettinger of Allentown.

Harold Weidlich of Bartonsville, Weather Predictor of the local Fraternity in cohorts with the Grundsow, forecasted Spring's coming soon with the lengthening of days and the termination of frigid weather and heavy snows. This announcement was welcomed by all.

Jim Koppenhaver, Fuder Maishder, had the American Legion Auxiliary serve a full course stewed chicken dinner with all the trimmings. Parre Charles Ruloff offered the invocation and read the minutes. Pennsylvania Dutch songs were sung to the accompaniment of band music. The Lodge adjourned until next year.

Incidents Reviewed

In Tuesday night's report to the nation on his good-will trip to South America, President Eisenhower referred to demonstrations in which police used tear gas and fire hoses in Montevideo, Uruguay.

While they were noisy and made the headlines, the incidents were minor in comparison with the welcome the President received. They were the exceptions, he said, and we are pleased to know they do not reflect the true attitude of our southern neighbors toward the U.S.

One of the most interesting developments of his trip was the letter he received from the Federation of Students of Chile. This marked the President's first contact, indirect as it was, with members of a group—the university students, from whose ranks will be drawn most of a struggling continent's future leadership—which has significance in Latin American life out of all proportion to its numbers.

The Chilean students' list of grievances also has considerable importance in itself, a fact which Mr. Eisenhower recognized by commenting briefly on the letter and promising to reply to it after careful study. The points made by the students are not sophomoric effusions that can be lightly dismissed as being too immature for serious discussion.

They are important questions that go to the heart of problems—military security, industrialization and economic development, the promotion of democracy—which run all through the fabric of South American life.

The President quite properly chided the students for some of their less temperate statements, notably the claim that the United States "crushes the economies of Latin America in order to enrich itself." This and other misconceptions about U. S. intentions and attitudes must be firmly answered.

But it also is true, as Mr. Eisenhower said in his initial response, that some of the students' criticism of U. S. policy and behavior is just. A full-fledged reply will serve both to crystallize American thinking and to give assurance to our Latin American neighbors that we take their problems seriously and want to help in reaching just solutions.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Small Car Highway Safety

Are small cars safer than big cars? A conclusion that they are can be drawn from the decision of the nation's major insurance companies to grant a ten per cent discount on auto insurance premiums to owners of small and compact cars.

Rating organizations representing 400 companies asked for the slash. It will go into effect in Pennsylvania March 1.

In explaining the decision one of the rating organizations said this:

"We expect that our companies' experience in insuring these small and compact cars will show lower bodily injury, property damage liability and collision damage losses because of the lower horsepower, smaller size and weight and related safety factors of these vehicles."

The insurance industry does nothing capriciously. Nor does it operate through chance or charity. In setting rates it figures the risks by using hard, comprehensive statistical evidence.

It is not unreasonable to conclude, then, that despite all the power-means-safety claims by Detroit manufacturers a few years ago the small, light, less powerful autos are safer than their bigger brothers.

Following this line of thought one step further, the traffic safety situation will brighten in direct proportion to the increase of smaller cars on the road.

The Pennsylvania Story

Saga Of The Ladder

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — Not too many political moons ago when Harold E. Stassen was governor of Minnesota the "wonder boy of politics" was regarded generally as a sure bet to climb to the top of the political ladder — possibly even becoming President.

In the interim since those "wonder boy" days the hale and hearty Mr. Stassen has chugged mightily to live up to his advance billings.

True, he ran for the presidency; he ran for the governorship of Pennsylvania; he ran for the post of Mayor of Philadelphia.

However in none of these ventures was he successful. . . The rungs of the ladder have been steadily inching upward—without benefit of the presence of Mr. Stassen on the moving rungs.

Currently he is running for the post of delegate to the Republican National Convention this summer — from the third district in Philadelphia. . . Will Mr. Stassen make this near-bottom rung on the ladder this time?

For the former Minnesota governor, and now a Philadelphia attorney, 1960 unquestionably is a decided contrast to those "wonder boy" days of only a comparatively few short years ago!

The Thinning Ranks—Within recent weeks a number of familiar faces — familiar around legislative halls and corridors, that is — have disappeared from the scene, the result of "layoffs" of per diem (per day) legislative workers; clerks, stenographers, etc., the result of the legislative recess to June 6.

Nearly one hundred such temporary workers have been given their blue furlough slips so far, subject to recall when lawmakers return to their legislative duties early in June. . . A skeleton crew remains on hand keeping the home fires burning.

The furlough move has been a routine one historically when extended legislative recesses were in the offing.

Pre-session plans of legislative leaders who envisioned the current extended recess, at the time included the furloughing now under way but a point worth noting is this:

Depending on how the annual session schedule under way this year for the first time works out, per diem legislative employees in the future may drop sharply to the minority if the pendulum swings in the direction of need for full time year-round employees to complement the annual sessions schedule!

Significant Footnote — State Treasurer Robert F. Kent in his monthly report on Pennsylvania's fluctuating fiscal affairs appended an interesting footnote in the final sentence of his report for February — a footnote Pennsylvanians would do well to tuck away in their collective pocketbooks. . . Said keeper-of-the-official-coffers Kent:

"The individual consumer, not industry or business is now providing the bulk of tax revenues for Pennsylvania's General Fund."

Supporting this new and interesting trend, the custodian of the official vault in the Finance Building (that rarely houses any cash incidentally) noted that during the month of February sales-use tax collections continued to be the major source of revenue for the State — with receipts amounting to $44.5 million!

The Panic Button — When nominally sunny and somewhat tropical Harrisburg is smitten by ten inches of snow such as occurred during the past week, a rush for the panic button perhaps is almost inevitable.

Snow plows and snow shovels of all sorts and descriptions appeared on the scene the day of the great snow, clearing the walks, roads and steps that abound on Capitol Hill. . . In desperation, as piles of shoveled and plowed snow grew, dump trucks appeared, were duly loaded with the light, fluffy stuff — but lo and behold when the dump trucks traveled their short distance on the Hill and raised their dump bodies to spill the load — the stuff was too light and fluffy to roll out. . . Quoth one flabbergasted "southerner": "What we need is an electric fan to blow the stuff away."

Alice In Wonderland

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Praise From Devil

The official paper of Castro, "Revolution," on January 25, 1960, praised Herbert Matthews, Latin American expert of "The New York Times," as "a great North American." I rise to Herbert Matthews' defense. He did not, after all, tell Fidel Castro to behave like a beast!

"Revolution" said: "What is impressive about Matthews' recent act in our defense is the special circumstance under which it occurred. He certainly did not face the biased opinion of a group of foreigners, unable perhaps to understand us and who, in the long run, have no reason to love us other than for the satisfaction of their immediate needs."

"He confronted with the undeniable truth a deserter who first saw the light of the sun on these Cuban shores and went abroad to turn against us by so many inches of space in the 'Miami Herald' and to brazenly discredit us on the television screen, betraying his country in a shameful alliance with vindictive criminals and unscrupulous businessmen."

Further, "Revolution" said: "While Matthews has had a warm place in our hearts for some time and while on more than one occasion we have feared that those who monopolize everything in his country, from newspapers to steel, from buying people's dignity to the right to dispose, every now and then, of millions of lives with which to wage wars to uphold their sovereignty would embitter him against us and we would lose him. It is with this last gesture of his that our gratitude has grown to great proportions."

The language of this article is mindful of "Pravda" and "Izvestia" back in the earliest days of the Bolshevik Revolution. . . It is mindful of the praise for John Reed and Big Bill Haywood. Since those days, the Russian Communists have forgotten the word Bolshevik, and they do not heap crumbs of praise upon those aliens who see in them perfections which they know they do not possess. . . To such factions (in the United States) is due the ill will which hits North Americans at every point in the world where one takes their dollars without giving one's heart in exchange.

"Far be it from us to rise up against them. It is with such deceived people that we shake hands as with all peoples, regardless of how much those who distort reality try to make enemies of us."

"It is, moreover, such people that we greet every day in the form of thousands of white and black, Catholic and Presbyterian tourists who . . . and like Herbert Matthews, do more for the solidarity of all men than all the millions from all mutual-aid programs and from all inter-American banks."

What the Castrites are doing obviously is to irritate the American people and the Congress to such a pitch that we shall, in anger, blow them into the Caribbean.

When the time comes, we shall cut off the sugar quota and the sugar subsidy, for obviously it makes no sense to assist such a country. If Castro finds his country enslaved by our generosity, he has the option of not accepting either the enslavement or the generosity.

As for the extraordinary praise for Herbert Matthews of "The New York Times," this is unfortunate for Matthews because it raises a question which Senator Fulbright ought immediately to investigate.

Why was Herbert Matthews called in by the State Department to brief Earl E. T. Smith on Cuba when Smith was appointed to be our Ambassador to that country?

As things have turned out, was Matthews' judgment of the Castro revolution correct from the standpoint of the United States? Does not this official article give the impression that Matthews' attitude was and is partisan? Read this from the "Revolution" article:

"Heroic was his climb of the mountains of Oriente, where he risked danger of ambush by Batista's troops, in order to proclaim to the world in truthful testimony and with his accurate camera that the hero from the (yacht) 'Granma' had not died."

He then showed heroism in appearing among people enveloped in a blockade of hatred and discredit. He was heroic three days ago when he had to stir us up against some of our people."

"We want to be engaged—for a dollar down and so much a week."

By Robert Clark, City Editor

"Silent Service" is a television program which brings out the many dramatic moments of the submarine corps during the last war. Its narrator is a retired admiral who had a big part in many of these stories.

A conversation with Bill Baldwin, the Stroudsburg fender fixer via Delaware Water Gap, notes that much of the technical material of the "Silent Service" is a little off key.

However, Baldwin is the first to admit that they have to "soup up" the program to give it more momentum.

For example Baldwin, a veteran of four years in the underwater unit, notes that no ship officer would call back to his base and get instructions on what to do in a certain situation. Bill pointed out that when his U-boat went to sea on a patrol or life saving mission they maintained strict silence so that the enemy couldn't pick up any inkling on the whereabouts of their sub.

Baldwin can tell you tales of his career chasing Japanese ship tonnage and picking up of downed American and Australian fliers. However, one of the best is a humorous one when his sub got caught on a reef and they had to be picked up by another which also had aboard survivors of a destroyer which was rammed by a Kamikaze pilot.

He noted that the boat which is small anyway had two full complements of sub personnel (about 100 men) plus the destroyer's roster. This made enough room, he said, to keep one hand in your pocket while you ate with the other.

The duty aboard was okay because you only drew a watch half the regular time. But Baldwin said the extra time was waste of time because you couldn't draw bunk time. First because there were no bunks available and second because he has never seen anyone grab shuteye standing up.

But when the boat got back at its base in Perth, Australia, two weeks after, Baldwin got his sleep.

Nowadays he is getting regular slumber without the roars of sub engines, and cramped quarters. Only the banging away of fenders, hoods etc. are the noises ringing in his ears.

Interpreting The News

U.S. Must Follow Through In S.A.

By J. M. Roberts
Associated Press News Analyst
PRESIDENT Eisenhower has had a considerable success in his effort to show Latin Americans that the United States is in other underdeveloped areas, but the final evaluation of his visit will depend heavily on how quickly something is done.

It is a developing situation, in which some of the development—such as organization of the Inter-American Development Fund—began before the President planned his trip.

Discussion of the operation of this fund went on at lower levels while the President conferred with chiefs of government. The President therefore continues to speak in generalities.

These generalities already have led to predictions in the United States that there will be no real follow-through. They undoubtedly will produce an undercurrent of disappointment in Latin America until there is a factual display of action.

One feature of the situation calculated to contribute to uncertainty in Latin America during the period of gestation is the concrete planning of aid for the rest of the world which began Wednesday in Washington.

At that conference nine of the wealthier nations hope to work out a coordinated program for the have-nots, primarily in Asia, the Middle East and Africa. This is in answer to the demand from the United States last year that aid be increased at the same time the load is better shared.

Such a conference is bound to keep alive Latin America's feeling of being left out until something happens in that sphere.

One of the most important products of the President's trip has been the kindling in the United States of a greater awareness of the problems of the southern continent. The Cuban situation is a strong lesson in what can happen through lack of interest and inert policies.

The Allen-Scott Report

Crucial Demo Parley

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott
Washington — The biggest regional Democratic conference of them all is taking place in Detroit on March 25-26-27.

In effect, it will be a sectional convention with far-reaching potentialities.

Already signed up to attend this 14-state Midwest meeting are 3,010 local, state and national Democratic leaders, including all the presidential candidates.

10 governors, 15 senators, and 75 congressmen.

Also, these 14 Midwestern states will have 458 delegates at the Los Angeles convention, 30.1 percent of the 1,521 total, as follows: Illinois 69; Indiana 34; Iowa 26; Kansas 21; Michigan 31; Minnesota 31; Missouri 16; Nebraska 16; North Dakota 11; Ohio 34; Oklahoma 29; South Dakota 11; West Virginia 25; and Wisconsin 31.

Former President Truman and his first choice for the presidential nomination, Senator Stuart Symington, are slated for major addresses. The other White House hopefuls also are scheduled for talks.

One unusual feature of this large regional conference is the plan of Chairman Frank Thies, Kansas National Committeeman, to formally approve a series of major platform planks for submission to the Los Angeles convention, where the Democratic platform will be adopted.

As contemplated by Thies, the Detroit meetings will recommend planks on the farm issue, defense, foreign policy, taxes, public works and interest rates on government securities.

For this purpose he has named a special group that includes Trevor Gardner, former Assistant Air Force Secretary Harvard Professor Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.; Representative Chester Bowles, Conn., former Ambassador to India; Governor Herschel Lovelace of Iowa; and Leon Keyserling, head of the Council of Economic Advisers under Truman.

Gardner, who quit the Eisenhower Administration because of disagreement over defense policies, is on the program for a critical talk on this stormy subject.

Democratic politicians are attaching much significance to the fact that the Detroit conference is shortly before Wisconsin's April 5 presidential primary, which could decisively affect the ambitions of Senators Hubert Humphrey and John Kennedy. Their lieutenants are already very busy in the backstage preparations for this important Midwest meeting.

Politically — Latest move to pep up Sen. Stuart Symington's presidential drive is the hiring of two veteran Washington newsmen to handle press activities. They are Lee Miller, who did such work for the Democratic National Committee in the 1952 and 1956 campaigns, and Leo Farrell, who has had a hand in many political battles.

Sen. Lyndon Johnson has received letters from two unexpected sources warmly acclaiming him as a presidential candidate. The writers are Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter and Sugar Ray Robinson, former middleweight champion, who enthusiastically praised the Senate Democratic Leaders' efforts to enact civil rights legislation.

Former President Truman cracked a rib during his Florida vacation. The mishap was not serious, and in no way interfered with his pleasurable stay in Miami and Key West. While in Key West, Truman startled old friends by remarking that the man he "really would like to see nominated for President is (Supreme Court Justice) Bill Douglas."

In 1948, when Truman won his surprise re-election, he unavailingly tried to persuade Douglas to leave the bench to be his running mate. . . Despite the intense pace of Senator Kennedy's campaigning, he is thriving physically. His aides are telling newsmen since the first of the year.

A hot clash is shaping up in Kansas for the Democratic nomination against Senator Andrew Schoepel (R.), who is up for re-election this year. Democratic leaders eyeing his seat are Lt. Gov. Joseph Hendel, State Highway Director John Goodrich, and Mrs. Andrew Gray, who was Treasurer of the U. S. in the Truman Administration.

The Kansas primary is August 4, but already the jockeying among the Democrats is very active.

Mrs. Fred Vinson, widow of the Chief Justice, has accepted the co-chairmanship of the Democratic congressional dinner on April 30 to raise a half-million-dollar campaign fund. That is to be done by selling upwards of 5,000 tickets at $100 a plate, and the legislative leaders appear very confident they will succeed.

Try and Stop Me —by Bennet Cerf

A farmer in Kansas reputedly was so stingy the Federal Wage and Hour Administration got wind of him and sent an operative down to investigate his tactics.

"I have been told," said the operative, "that you are violating the law by paying below the minimum."

"You have, hey?" the farmer reported. "Well, let's see. There's Jake, who milks the cows and watches TV most of the day. He gets $40 a week. There's Hanneb, who's supposed to do the cooking, but reads love stories and fan magazines most of the time. She gets $35. Then there's my son, Cal, who kicks footballs through the windows and drives off in the car every night. He gets $30."

"Nothing wrong with that," admitted the government man. "Anybody else to tell about?"

"Just the half-wit," mused the farmer. "He works 18 hours a day and gets $10 a week for terbarcy and his board and room."

"I'd like to speak to him," said the operative.

"You're speaking to him right now," said the farmer.

When Sister Madeline wheeled the portable library up to the bedside of a perky young lady in the hospital near Holyoke, Mass., the young lady asked mischievously, "Got anything there that's been banned lately in Boston, Sister?"

"My dear girl," answered Sister Madeline with a twinkle, "we haven't even got anything here that was WRITTEN in Boston!"

In a southern court, a local socialite, obviously overripe on the bough, stepped up to the witness stand. "Clerk," ordered the judge, "I will swear this witness in myself. Madam, how old are you?"

"Thirty-two, Your Honor," simpered the witness.

"Precisely," nodded the Judge solemnly. "And now, do you solemnly swear to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?"

Missionary Speaks At Lions Fete

REV. Wellesley Devitt, a Presbyterian missionary in Africa for 29 years, was the speaker at the dinner meeting of Stroudsburg Lions Tuesday in the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

During World War I, Rev. Devitt served in the King's African Rifles. Trophies he displayed included mounted heads of lions, elephants' feet, leopard skins and native spears.

The clergyman described big game hunting expeditions and told how he and his organization built several hundred permanent homes for the use of Africans and others engaged in mission work.

He also discussed the cooperation of Massai tribesmen in protecting their farm crops by combining their holdings.

Dr. William C. Kopenhaver, club president, reminded members of the district rally honoring Ralph Lockhard, district governor, to be held in Easton on April 20.

It was announced that the annual St. Patrick's Day party will be held next Tuesday with wives of members as guests.

Father Of Water Gap Man Dies

DR. J. E. Kempter, 92, father of Guyton Kempter, of Delaware Water Gap, died March 4 at Chambersburg after a long illness.

A practicing physician for more than 60 years, Dr. Kempter had spent most of his life in Chambersburg and had retired in 1955.

He entered the profession in 1894 upon his graduation from the University of Maryland, and after two years at Garfield Memorial Hospital, Baltimore, began his first active practice of medicine at St. Thomas in 1896. Two years later, he moved to Chambersburg. He twice took post graduate work at the University of Vienna.

Author Of Articles

Dr. Kempter was the author of a number of medical articles of note, several of which were printed in the London Lancet, authoritative medical journal.

He is generally credited with making one of the first diagnoses in the East of Rocky Mountain spotted fever. One of his patients contracted the disease many years ago when little was known of its symptoms of treatment. Surviving in addition to his son Guyton is another son, J. E. Kempter Jr., of Pompano Beach, Fla. Funeral services were held Tuesday at Chambersburg and burial was in Stenger Hill Cemetery, Fort Loudon, Pa.

Research Program

RAE CORNWALL, local manager of the Citizens Gas Co., advised yesterday that the American Gas Assn. has initiated a $2,000,000 research program for 1960. This represents a 15 percent increase over 1959's research program.

Research will be directed toward increased use of automatic controls with gas being employed to provide electric energy without any connection to electric lines.

The industry will continue its research into the development of the fuel cell, thermionic and thermo-electric generation. Further development is anticipated in the production of infrared burners, more efficient heating and air conditioning units, improved individual room heating equipment and water heaters reduced in size without any loss in performance.

Cornwall added that the number of gas appliances in daily use in the United States has reached an all time high of approximately 180 million. The gas industry is serving 40 million residential customers, of which approximately 25 percent use liquefied petroleum gas in areas beyond the gas mains.

$148,179,307 Payoff

EASTON, Pa. — James M. Glaus, manager of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company's Eastern district, reports that the company's payments to policyholders and beneficiaries in Pennsylvania last year amounted to $148,179,307.

"On the basis of company-wide averages, about twice as much was paid to living policyholders as to beneficiaries of death claim payments," he added.

Over the last five years, payments to Pennsylvania policyholders and beneficiaries have amounted to $667,588,229.

Glaus recently returned from a three-day conference of officals and district managers of the company in New York.

15 Percent Discount

A 15 PERCENT discount on liability insurance rates for compact cars in Pennsylvania has been announced by Nationwide Mutual Insurance Co.

The lower rates have been approved by the Pennsylvania Insurance Department and went into effect on March 1.

The lower rates will not apply in instances where the owner is already receiving a 15 percent discount—such as that given the youthful driver who completes a certified driver training course.

Donald E. Wisner, 525 Main St., Mt. Pocono, is district sales manager for Nationwide Insurance.

Chamber Head Sees It 'GOP'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new president of the United States Chamber of Commerce said yesterday failure at the summit in May would damage Republican prospects in next November's U.S. elections.

"It's a Republican conference no matter what anybody says," said Arthur H. Motley, president of Parade Publications, Inc., New York.

Saying President Eisenhower should take some leading Democrats to the summit with him, Motley declared: "There are some damn good ones."

"But if the summit conference fails, it will be a Republican defeat," he added.

FAA Rules Own Plane Bottle Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wednesday was the last day for the air traveler to imbibe heavily or to take a swig out of his personal bottle in flight.

Starting Thursday, it could cost him up to a $1,000 fine to sneak a quick nip.

A new rule of the Federal Aviation Agency provides that no alcoholic beverages may be consumed aboard airplanes unless served by the airline.

FAA said it expects the airlines to advise their passengers of the new restriction. Airline employees must report violations to the FAA.

The passenger who insists on bringing his own liquor aboard must hand the bottle to the stewardess and let her serve the drinks.

The new rule also forbids the service of alcoholic beverages to a passenger who is or appears to be intoxicated.

Look, Ma! We Are Dancing, But—Presbyterian Workers Will Speak Here

By Eugene Gilbert
President, Gilbert Youth
Research Co.

IF YOU, dear adult, consider the dance as the chief tribal rite of the teen generation, you err.

Although the majority of the youngsters enjoy dancing, there is a sizeable number who say they don't. In fact, they assert that dancing gets little emphasis in the teen crowd.

As an entiable characteristic, the ability to cut a figure on the dance floor rates low indeed among teenagers. And you'd be surprised at the popularity of some of the ancient dances: the foxtrot, the lindy and even the waltz.

These conclusions were drawn from the answers of 797 teen-

APPROXIMATELY one in six youngsters interviewed said he could do without dancing while 16 per cent do not. On the other hand, 79 per cent of the young people say their crowds do not particularly emphasize good dancing, while only 19 per cent say they do.

Moreover, only 56 per cent prefer dates who are good dancers. This, incidentally, is of more concern to the girls than the boys; 63 per cent say they prefer a good dancer as compared with 48 per cent of the boys.

"At most parties dancing is the thing done most, and it's more fun if the boy is a good dancer," says Beverly Robin, 14, of Los Angeles. But Barton M. Brass, 16, of Malden, Mass., says, "If the girl is nice and attractive she could have broken feet."

As a clincher, only 4 per cent of the youngsters consider ability to dance the first item of importance in rating the popularity of another boy or girl.

An interesting personality is most important, say 78 per cent of the youngsters, while 16 per cent are especially attracted by good looks.

Dancing is highly regarded, nevertheless, as a means of displaying a winning personality.

Is Important
"It is important," says 16-year-old Joyce Soll of San Francisco, "because you can show off your personality while dancing and having fun and meeting people."

The nearest thing to a current dance craze would be rock 'n' roll, but its popularity isn't overwhelming. Almost half the young people say it is the favorite dance in their area, with the foxtrot second, the cha cha third and the lindy fourth. But personal preference is something else again.

Only about one-third of the youngsters say the rock 'n' roll is their own favorite. Again the foxtrot ranks second. The jitterbug is third, cha cha fourth and the waltz is in fifth place.

More youngsters say they prefer "any slow dance" than those who vote for "any fast dance."

Forty per cent of the teenagers we questioned are ashamed of their own dancing, while 38 per cent step onto the dance floor with confidence.

Most of them—68 per cent—have never taken dancing lessons. Of the 32 per cent who have, only 26 per cent say the lessons were helpful while 10 per cent say they still have two left.

Of the 68 per cent who have not had lessons, 22 per cent say they would like to take some.

Feel Embarrassed
Almost half the young people feel embarrassed when they find themselves on the dance floor with a flashy dancer.

"I believe he makes a fool out of himself, and I feel foolish," says Janet M. Bailey, 17, of San Francisco.

"I am afraid I would goof up the whole dance," says 17-year-old Mary Ann Mahallan of Struthers, Ohio.

But others take a more casual attitude. "I do my best," says Robert Culbertson, 17, of Batavia, Ohio, "and if that's not good enough I think no more about it."

Then there's the problem of the short boy and the tall girl and the invitation to dance. It comes out about even.

Among the girls, 52 per cent say they do not like to dance with boys shorter than they. Among the boys, half say they do not like dancing with taller girls.

TWO fraternal workers of the United Presbyterian Church will be in this area between March 13 and 27, speaking in churches throughout the Lehigh Presbytery.

On Monday, March 14 at 9:30 a.m. Rev. Lorenz D. Emery will be interviewed by Rev. John A. Bollier on the program "Design for Living" over WVPO.

On Monday, March 21 at 9:30 a.m. Rev. A. Ensign Leininger will be interviewed on the same program by Dr. Peter K. Emmons.

Rev. Emery is principal of the Presbyterian school at Girardot and of an annex of the school in Villarrica, Tolima. He is the representative of the American Leprosy Missions in Colombia and directs the Presbyterian church in Agua de Dios, the largest leper colony in the world.

In the past, he has served as secretary of the Office of Information of the Evangelical Confederation in Colombia, in which capacity he was intimately connected with the investigation and publication of accounts of the persecution of the Protestant Church in Colombia.

During 1956, he was in charge of the Office of Evangelism of the Evangelical Confederation, and it was his responsibility to organize the evangelistic activities in celebration of the first centennial of the Protestant Church in Colombia.

Rev. A. Ensign Leininger, Presbyterian fraternal worker in the Philippines, is on the faculty of the Alay Bible School at Legaspi, Philippines. This school is conducted for the purpose of training Filipino men and women to work as evangelists in the villages.

The students are given instruction in preaching, simple music, and kindergarten teaching. On Sunday they go into the villages to preach and to conduct Sunday School classes, using visual aids and music as helps.

Mr. Leininger has general supervision of this work with the help of graduate evangelists.

LONDON (AP) — Soviet economist Stanislav Strumilin says in a magazine article read over Radio Moscow that when Communist ideals are fully realized, the average Soviet's day will go something like this:

Unusual Procedure

AN UNUSUAL procedure took place in U. S. Court at Scranton Wednesday when an ancillary receiver was named for a man who was adjudicated a bankrupt in Florida.

The bankruptcy is that of Tambella who owned real estate in the Poconos.

Judge Frederick V. Folmer named Attorney Murray Mackerson as the ancillary receiver who is to sell the Pocono real estate for the benefit of the estate.

Tambella was adjudged bankrupt in the Southern District of Florida Dec. 17, 1959. Judge E. C. Choate is handling the proceedings.

Veteran court employees recall the appointment of an ancillary receiver was only the second here in many years.

Mr. and Mrs. Thornton Kelper, of Foxtown Hill Road and Mrs. LeRoy Kaiser returned Tuesday night from West Palm Beach, Fla. They encountered snow first in North Carolina and say there was more in Virginia than they found here. The roads were free of snow all the way. The party left the other Monroe County folk hugging the warmth of Florida for a while longer.

The money raised by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church of the Mountain through its calendar solicitation will go toward paying off the debt for repairs to the manse. It was previously stated in error that the proceeds would be turned over to the kitchen fund.

Traffic has lessened perceptibly on Main St. and on Broad St. since the Delaware Water Gap toll bridge reopened Monday.

The condition of Mrs. William Johnson, who has been in General Hospital ill with rheumatic fever for some weeks, is reported much improved.

Two birthdays were celebrated in the Anton Redzig family this month. A quiet, family celebration marked that of Miss Elizabeth Redzig, Sunday. Miss Redzig is a student at Churchman Business College in Easton and is living in Easton weekdays. The other birthday, that of Mrs. Redzig's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hoffman, who is 80 this Thursday, was also marked by the family with birthday cake and gifts.

Favorite amusement of Henry Ford, as a boy, was taking a watch apart and putting it together again.

Dear Abby

Speak Your Piece--Now

Dear Abby: My husband is 29, handsome and makes a lot of money. He owns his own business. We've been married four years (no children) and I am 27.

Last night he got a telephone call (at dinner time) from a young woman who works in his office. She asked if she could come over and talk to him. He said "yes" and she came. She was very pretty. She said she didn't want to talk in the house. So he asked if I'd excuse them while he took her for a little drive.

He came back alone in an hour. He said he had been having trouble with her boyfriend. She had been intimate with him and now he was stalling the marriage. She asked my husband to advise her.

Abby, when he told me this, I got sick inside. What right has she discussing such things with my husband? He says she is a "good kid" but very mixed-up. My intuition tells me she is after my husband. I am so upset I can't think straight.

How should I handle this? SICK INSIDE

Dear Sick: Make it plain that you do not want any other woman crying on your husband's shoulder. From what you say this young lady has nerve she hasn't used yet. Tell your husband that he should keep his relationship with his employees on an impersonal basis. Tell him you think this kind of goings-on is a threat to your marriage and you want it nipped in the bud. Your intuition is probably correct. Speak your piece and pull no punches. And close with lots of love and plenty of kisses.

Dear Abby: My fiance and I are having an argument. Should a gentleman carry a lady's bowling ball or not? I say he should. My fiance says that if a woman is strong enough to bowl six lines in an evening she is strong enough to carry her own bowling ball.

Dear Lady: It's not a matter of who has strength for what. It is a matter of courtesy. Think twice before marrying this man. Seems to me you could find someone more "up your alley".

Dear Abby: How much do you think a 15-year-old girl should know about sex? All my friends know all there is to know about the subject and I don't I am just wondering if I am slow or they are fast? SOPHOMORE

Dear Sophomore: Nobody knows all there is to know about any subject, though they may boast that they do. If there are questions in your mind concerning sex, ask any authority (your mother, your doctor, your school nurse, or a mature intelligent adult). A girl who is old enough to ask is old enough to know.

Dear Abby: Why is it that a dozen children are too much for two parents, but two parents are too much for a dozen children? FORGOTTEN FATHER

Dear Forgotten: This is not always the case. But when it is, the children have many years in which to regret their selfishness.

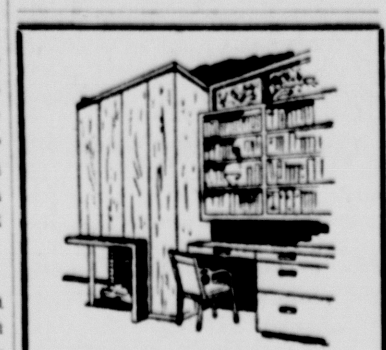

What's your problem? For a personal reply, write to Abby in care of this paper and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Send for Abby's pamphlet, What Every Teenager Wants To Know. In care of this paper. Enclose a large stamped, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents in coin.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

Judging by the news, all of you have gained new life and gaiety from your enforced long weekend-at-home. You are certainly the busiest things and making up for lost time.

It might seem that news might seem repetitious when you've been writing about the same thing year after year but it never does because it involves different people and while a baby shower is a baby shower, and there are only a certain number of things you can change, like stories or cradles, or napkins folded like diapers to serve as nut cups, each shower is for a different baby.

Programs for meetings also tend to run in cycles. This year, for instance we've had a regular rash of panels on juvenile delinquency. True the personnel of the panels change slightly in each instance, but you'd think by the unimpeachable program they would be repeating themselves.

But not according to the publicity chairman in each case. Either the speakers are exceptionally versatile, or else each publicity chairman hears different things or considers different things worth reporting, because in each case, it has been a different story with new details.

To a casual reader who skims headlines, the news may seem repetitious: so many engagements, so many weddings, so many meetings, so many fund raising projects with different names.

But not to me. And most certainly not to the people directly involved.

Even 40 Delinquents Too Many, PTA Decides After Hearing Panel Discussion

Out of an estimated 10,000 children in Monroe County, about 40 a year are classified as juvenile delinquents, it was reported at the East Stroudsburg Elementary Parent Teachers Assn. meeting this week with Irving Sommers serving as moderator.

A juvenile is legally not delinquent until declared so by the court, State Trooper Alex Kearn pointed out. In the case of children between the ages of 7 and 14 who get into trouble, the district attorney and the probation officer decide if the case justifies being taken to court, he said.

Henry McCool, Monroe County Probation officer, outlined the procedure. A petition by the DA and probation officer is presented to the judge who, after investigating all the facts, decides on the proper procedure.

That procedure for a first offender usually includes probation and only if that fails is the juvenile delinquent sent to an institution, he explained. In the question period which followed McCool described Kish-Lynn and Camp Hill institutions and the cost to the taxpayers for children placed there.

Harold Ingraham, a director of the Guidance Clinic, explained that the clinic is supported by Federal grants, grants from the County Commissioners and Community Chest, some schools and individuals in the county.

The role of the Guidance Clinic in juvenile delinquency was explained by Dr. William Horowitz, clinic psychiatrist. It is only within the last three years that the Guidance Center has handled cases of juvenile delinquency.

At the present time about 12 of the 40 cases are referred to the clinic, he said. Interviews with the juvenile and his parents are followed by separate conferences, he explained, after which the clinic reports its findings and recommendations to the court. Results so far have been good, he reported.

In the discussion which followed the panel presentation three opinions stood out: Most juveniles in trouble have parents with problems.

The cost to the county would be much less if children were examined early at the Guidance Clinic and helped rather than waiting until they get into trouble.

There is a definite need for Marriage and Family Counseling in the community.

At the business meeting a progress report on the book fair to be held April 1 and 2 was given by John Lambert.

Elected to the nominating committee were Mrs. Clarence Plattenburg, Mrs. Isaac Martin, and John Lambert.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Maynard Lee and Mrs. Stanley Melvin. A film on Girl Scouting "Leading Lady" was shown by Mrs. Clifford Kintner.

WHO SAYS WINTERS ARE WARMER?—Dr. John Gregory found the bear skin coat from his horse and buggy days came in handy, especially with that new fur birthday cap during the winter of 1960

Party Held For Veteran Veterinarian

Let it snow! Dr. John Gregory was ready for the predicted snow storm which failed to materialize with his bear skin coat which dates back to his horse and buggy days.

It was resurrected from the attic by his wife to go with the new fur hat which he received as a gift on his birthday because of the heavy snow. It is one he wore when he started practice as a VMD in Stroudsburg 53 years ago in 1907.

In those days, much of his practice was with cattle and horses and his office was in Bill Hood's Boarding Stable. Later he moved to the Fulmer Horse Stables, where the Penn-Stroud Hotel garage now stands.

In 1920 he moved to 11 North Eighth St., where he is still in practice. Sharing honors at Dr. Gregory's birthday party was his daughter, Barbara Gilpin, whose birthday is on March 8. There were two birthday cakes. Guests included Donald and Barbara Gilpin, John and Mary Jane Gilpin, and Mrs. Karl Werry.

The Wyckoff Shopper

The friendly one A.B. Wyckoff STROUDSBURG, PA.

PEOPLE AND PLACES...

Betty Colvin of our corset department, reports receiving a letter from Mrs. Elwood Hintze which gladdened her heart and is, I think, a great compliment to our store. Postmarked Clearwater, Florida, Mrs. Hintze writes, "All one has to do is get away from Stroudsburg to really see how Wyckoff's is missed."

We are pleased about this... and pleased too to hear the interesting experience of Irving Foltz who, with Mrs. Foltz, has just returned from Hot Springs, Arkansas. Attending Rotary Club, Prof. Foltz met a gentleman from Mississippi by the name of Pryor, who was very interested in learning about the Stroudsburgs. "Do you know anything about a Wyckoff store there?" Mr. Pryor asked. "Mr. Wyckoff must be a most interesting man. I have met him on the market and he always buys the very best at the very finest places. He must have an unusually fine store." Our loyal friend from the Stroudsburgs told him that Mr. Wyckoff does indeed have a unique and wonderful store, and that all of the Wyckoffs are interesting people.

I have known the Foltzes for years... since I was a teenage graduate rounding up social news for the Daily Record, and I am pleased to learn they had such a splendid vacation but are now at home.

From the midwest comes a friendly letter from Julia Herron just three days too late to please me. Julia, who had visited our store several times as fashion coordinator for Summerette shoes, and had been living in South Bend, Indiana, writes to tell me she is now with a brand new sales promotion and merchandising firm, and residing in Chicago. "Come and see me," she urges... "I'm quite pleased with this apartment." And I WOULD have visited her last weekend if the invitation had reached me by Thursday.

Julia's new firm handles Johnson Wax, Sunbeam, Ekco and other home products, and she is busy writing brochures, trade articles, and training materials. A very capable, very charming young woman, we who know her here at Wyckoff's wish her the very greatest of success. She has been succeeded at Summerettes by Miss Phyllis Keays, who'll perhaps visit us one of these days. (We'd love having you too, Julia... ANY time!)

I am not a person who goes overboard about people as a usual thing, but I must say I have never been more enchanted by anyone than by Edna Palmer Engelhardt, whose paintings have won her distinction far beyond this county of ours, which is her home.

This past Tuesday evening I joined the Widmers, the John Farleys, and Mrs. Thorne, in attending the second of Mrs. Engelhardt's lectures at the Barrett YMCA in benefit of that worthy organization. She is charming... it is delightful to watch her paint, and her commentary on what she is doing is always simple, easy to understand, and very often humorous. For three hours she kept 51 persons enthralled. Many of them painted along with her, achieving effects that, in many cases, were astoundingly fine for amateurs. Since I do not paint, I was happy just to be able to observe, feeling that only through understanding the artist, his problems, and his efforts, can I ever really learn to appreciate and evaluate art.

This series of lectures is a golden opportunity for all interested persons to hear a truly distinguished artist and learn from her. They continue each Tuesday at 7:30 at the Barrett YMCA for only 1.00 a person.

Among those attending Mrs. Engelhardt's class were Elsie and Walter Logan, the former of WVPO's broadcasting staff, the latter of our Wyckoff picture framing department. It was good to see them both, as they have been quite ill. Why not bring YOUR favorite pictures or paintings into Walter for proper framing?

Judge Denounces Bank Policy

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—Federal Judge Frederick V. Follmer yesterday criticized officials of West Side Bank for permitting a young teller to return to work after questioning him about a shortage of $1,700.

The teller, John Krupnick, Jr., 20, pleaded guilty to embezzlement of $6,500. Follmer gave him an indefinite sentence in a federal youth correction institution and placed him on probation for five years. Full restitution was made a condition of the probation.

The U.S. District Court Judge said bank officials permitted the West Scranton teller to return to his cage for several hours Jan. 15 after they had questioned him.

"I think the bank is terrified by fault in this thing," Follmer said in handing down his sentence. "They made it possible for you to take an additional $4,500. It doesn't make sense to me."

He told Krupnick, however, "You're the one who did it and you're the one who must make restitution."

Survey Party Gets 'Welcome'

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—A seven-man survey party for the State Power Authority reported yesterday that two men in an automobile gave the party an angry welcome to the Tuscara Indian Reservation.

The automobile brushed by one of the surveyors, said Wendell Mason, foreman of the party, and knocked over two small signs set up beside a reservation road. The signs said "surveyors working."

Members of the party could not identify the two occupants of the car. But Mason said he believed they were Indians.

HAL (King) Lear hit two jump shots in the last 45-seconds, to give the Easton Madisons a 92-90 win over the All-Stars at East Stroudsburg State College.

In the preliminary game Bob Wert, scored 20 points to lead the Stroud Union faculty over the Varsity "E" Club 62-53.

John Hindman of East Stroudsburg High School, won a five-round sudden death playoff from Todd Williams, Stroud Union and Frank Kuhnbaker of Pocono Twp. High to win the Monroe County Foul shooting championship.

The trio tied with 17 out of 20 in the finals and after each had missed on the fourth playoff round, Kuhnbaker missed, Hindman connected and Williams' shot rolled off the rim to give the Eastbarger the title.

Lear Hits 29

Lear, who ended the night with 29 points had trouble finding the range early in the game. He didn't score his first bucket until two minutes after the start of the second period. The former Temple All-American managed only two more points in the half.

In the third and fourth periods Lear whipped in 25 points. But it was Chink Scott of the Stars who put on the scoring show. The six-foot, six-inch, Allentown Jet ace banged in 33 points including four long set shots from 30 feet out.

Scott, only 20-years-old is being sought by four National Basketball Assn. clubs but will not be eligible until next year, as he did not finish college and must wait for his class to graduate.

Blow Lead

The Madisons almost waited until it was too late. They trailed from the first minute until shortly after the start of the second half.

They opened a 12-point lead 66-54 with five minutes left in the third period but then clowned it away.

With Dick Gaines hiding behind the mats underneath the baskets and Goose Powell putting on a ball handling and dribbling exhibition, the Madisons, in second place in the Eastern League, saw the Stars with Scott hitting 12 points pull even at 86-86 late in the fourth quarter.

The Stars went in front 88-86 when Lorenzo Martin, former Moravian hoopster, hit two foul shots.

Choice Ties Score

Wally Choice, two-time All-American from Indiana, knotted the count at 88-88 with a pair of fouls but Martin scored a lay-up to make it 90-88 with only forty-five seconds left.

Then Lear tossed in a left handed jumper from the key and after the Stars lost the ball on a traveling vi-

Morning Postscripts

By Curt Prins
Sports Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE — The following column is the result of an interview by Curt Prins, with professional golfer Lionel Hebert during the 1959 Greensboro Open, N. C.

What Makes A Great Professional Golfer?

LIONEL HEBERT, the former Music major at Louisiana State University and 1957 PGA Tournament champ, says the difference between a good golfer and great one is the way they hit the ball into a green.

"The great ones," says Hebert, "get the ball well up into the air and pinpoint the ball on the putting surface."

Hebert, who likes to play his trumpet with local bands on the tournament stops, adds that too many of the touring pros try to line the ball into a green, so that if they are short, the ball will roll on.

Line Drivers Hampered On Good Courses

"But on a true championship course that has well-trapped greens," Hebert adds, "the line drivers don't have a chance."

He cites the Masters' tournament as a prime example. "Notice how many of the pros that win a great deal of money prior to the Masters, fail to qualify for the final 36 holes at Augusta." They only know how to run the ball up to a green and in the Masters they can't do it."

Lionel named Julius Boros, Tommy Bolt and Ed (Porky) Oliver as the circuit golfers who play extremely well on championship courses.

"Of course," he said, "Snead was one on the best in his prime and Ben Hogan was probably the greatest."

Wall Not Listed By Former PGA Champ

A reporter in the crowd asked Lionel why he didn't name Art Wall Jr.

"The only reason Wall is winning so much money is because of his chipping and putting. When those 40-foot putts quit dropping for Art, he'll cool off," Hebert replied.

"Bill Casper Jr. and Dow Finsterwald went through the same phase when everything was going in the hole for them," Hebert added, "I've had times like that myself."

Hebert is in favor of making tournament courses tougher. "If we played every tournament on championship courses, I believe that 10 of the players in the top 25 money winners now, would drop below the 25 mark."

Asked how tough golf courses should be made for the pros, Hebert replied: "That's hard to say," he answered, "but there's a limit on what should be allowed."

1958 Open Course Was Too Tough

He concluded with a description of the Southern Hills course in Tulsa, Okla., site of the 1958 U. S. Open.

"I don't think they cut the rough for a month. It was at least as high as a golf club in places. The sand in the traps was too fine also," Lee explained.

He elaborated on the sand:

"I was playing a practice round with Lloyd Mangrum and he lost three balls in one trap. When the ball hit, it left a hole about the size of a this," he said, pointing to a waste basket. It was almost impossible to blast out of the traps with any accuracy."

'Big O' Starts Final Bid To Help Cincy Win Title

By Hugh Fullerton Jr.

Associated Press Sports Writer

OSCAR Robertson begins his third and final effort to win the national collegiate basketball championship for the University of Cincinnati Friday night.

The Big O is the most widely known and probably the most skilled of about 160 players who will engage in the second stage of NCAA tournament action on four fronts.

If he isn't the most skilled, West Virginia's Jerry West deserves the designation. But they're not far above three or four other outstanding players who help him the 16 teams.

The Daily Investor

Difference In Series

Q. I decided to invest $1,000 of my nest egg in a mutual fund. A securities salesman suggested that I buy shares of one of the mutual funds sponsored by National Securities & Research Corp. I told the salesman that I wanted to invest for income. I agreed to purchase shares in the National Income Series fund.

Much to my surprise, a certificate has been sent to me representing shares in the National Stock Series fund. It seems to me that the two mutual funds are radically different. I feel that I have been "taken." What can I do?

A. The two funds aren't as different as you seem to think. National Securities & Research Corp. sponsors seven mutual funds. Three of them—the Income, Stock and Dividend Series—are designed primarily to produce income to their shareholders.

And, over the past 10 years, the Stock Series has a better record as an income producer than the Income Series. It also has a better record of long-term growth in investment value. However, it should be considered as being more of a risk than the Income Series fund.

Because National Stock Series is considered an "income type" mutual fund, it may be that you and the investment dealer did not fully understand each other. After taking a close look at the fund whose shares you own, you may be perfectly happy to stay with it.

However, if you still want to switch and if the investment dealer made an error in the first place, his firm should handle the swap for you—at no cost to you.

Q. My brother has sent me an article from an out-of-town newspaper. It states that the public "is beginning to show disenchantment" with mutual funds. The story is based on figures supplied by the National Assn. of Investment Companies. These show that sales of mutual fund shares have taken their first big drop since the 1957 recession.

This surprised me. I have several thousand dollars invested in three different mutual funds. Can you give me any information about this?

A. Sure, all kinds of information. What conclusion you want to draw is up to you.

The long-term trend of investments by the public in mutual fund shares has been up. From time to time, however, there have been dips.

In only four of the last 19 years have net sales of mutual fund shares dipped below the previous year. The last year it happened was 1953. During the 1957 recession, net sales were higher than in 1956.

On a month-to-month basis, the dips in net sales happen more frequently. The latest figures available from the National Assn. of Investment Companies on its mutual fund members show that net sales were $143 million in January, compared with $127 million in December and $148 million in January, 1959.

Net sales are the value of total sales, minus the value of shares turned in for redemption.

If redemption ever shot up, the funds would have something to worry about. That could happen. But it hasn't as yet. As a matter of fact, the funds have normally gained popularity with investors during periods when stock prices are falling.

Services
Tonight At Temple

TEMPLE Israel will hold the Friday night Sabbath Service at 8 p.m. Rabbi Joshua Soddien will conduct the service, and speak on the topic, "Purim, Holiday of Joy." James Breslauer will assist in conducting the service. Girl Scout Sabbath will also be observed by Temple Israel tonight. A reception will be held after the service.

Services on Saturday morning will start at 7:30 a.m. The holiday called Purim begins tomorrow night. This festival commemorates the successful intervention of Queen Esther and her cousin, Mordecai, on behalf of the Jews in the Persian Empire in the 6th Century B. C.

Haman, the king's premier, had drawn lots in order to select the day upon which he would carry out his evil plans against the Jews. The day chosen was the 13th of Adar. After Queen Esther and Mordecai had thwarted Haman's attempt to carry out his plan, the Jews celebrated their deliverance on the 14th day of Adar and this holiday was called Purim "Lots."

To this day, Jews observe Purim on the 14th of Adar. This year the 14th of Adar falls on Saturday night, and Sunday, March 13. Services tomorrow night will start at 6:30 p.m.

Scroll Of Esther
Following the Evening Service the Megillah, the Scroll of Esther, will be read. In keeping with the jolly spirit of this happy holiday, the Temple Sisterhood will conduct a "Purim Shpil of Fortune" tomorrow at 8 p.m. immediately following the reading of the Megillah. This activity will take place in the Temple Vestry room.

Morning Services on Sunday will start at 8:30 a.m. Temple Israel's Hebrew and Sunday Schools will present a children's program at 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

Liz Taylor
Slips On Ice

NEW YORK (AP)—Actress Elizabeth Taylor slipped on the ice outside a Philadelphia restaurant yesterday and hurt her left ankle.

A spokesman for the film star said a Philadelphia doctor diagnosed the injury as a possible fracture. So Miss Taylor was bundled into a private car and driven here to Harkness Pavilion of Columbia-Presbyterian Medical center.

With her came her husband Eddie Fisher, who had been visiting his mother in Philadelphia.

Half an hour after she was wheeled into the hospital in a chair, Miss Taylor was allowed to leave. An X-ray disclosed a bone bruise above the ankle but no fracture. It was taped and she was advised to take it easy for a couple of weeks.

Miss Taylor and Fisher returned to their apartment here.

2 Deeds Filed
In Courthouse

TWO deeds were filed yesterday in the office of Mrs. Jeanette F. Batory, Monroe County register and recorder:

Joseph H. and Mildred E. Beers, Lower Mt. Bethel Township, to Bangor Water Co., lots in Hamilton and Upper Mt. Bethel townships, $26,000; Martin L. and Virginia M. Buck, Jackson Township, to Willard W. and Iva V. Watkins and Wilburn L. and Roberta Exum, all of Stroudsburg, three lots in Stroudsburg.

Shooting Victim
Rites Today

FUNERAL services will be held this afternoon for Mrs. Blanche Tyrrell, who was killed by a shotgun blast Monday in her Mt. Bethel Township home.

Mrs. Tyrrell's husband, Lewis W. Jr., 38, has been charged with murder and voluntary manslaughter and is confined to Northampton County Prison. Tyrrell has claimed the shooting was an accident. A preliminary hearing will be held next week before Alderman Dudley Y. Schwab of Easton.
